The Inline Group Promotes Jim Eisenhauer to Chief Information Officer

The Inline Group (TIG), is proud to announce the promotion of Senior Information Technology Administrator, Jim Eisenhauer, to CIO.

“Jim is pivotal to the success of TIG. His unique ability to understand our business, create exceptional technology, and support every phase of our organization allows us to pivot quickly and deliver leading edge technical solutions,” says Kelli Mulloy, TIG President.

Mr. Eisenhauer has been with TIG for seven years, moving from Portland, Oregon to Dallas to join the TIG team. His talents expand into system and hardware support, programming of critical software, website support, database administration, and even the creation of the first primary care job app, tigma®.

“Jim keeps us on the leading edge of technology and is still willing to help me when I can’t remember my password, yet again. We are very lucky to have Jim on our team,” says Mulloy.
